TITLE INDEX.

1. The primary design of this Index is to remedy Robert Clavell's bungling carelessness in omitting from many of the Titles in the Text, the Names or Initials of the Authors, Editors, etc., which are to be found in the books themselves. The recovery of this information has been a most arduous undertaking, extending over months. The following references have been observed. There may possibly be others; for it has not been practicable to make this Index exhaustive and complete.
2. Advantage has also been taken to include in this Index the following useful helps:
   (a) Similar Titles of different Books. There were, at that time, a good many resemblances of the Titles of successful Works: sometimes by Imitators, at other times by Antagonists.
   (b) Different Titles to what is actually the same Text.
   (c) Each of the alternative Titles of single Poems, Plays, and Novels.
3. The English Articles, A, An, and The, have been omitted at the beginning of each Title.
4. All the Personal Names in black type in this Index will be found in the next one.

INDEX, GLOSSARY, & NOTES.

1. Large as this Index is, it is manifestly impossible to get everything in the Text into it. Excepting the Names of Scripture and of the Classical Mythology, every Personal Name, whether real or fictitious, ought to be found in it. There, I could very well have stopped: but a large amount of other information, which will be found very helpful, has been given; only it is partial and incomplete, in spite of some 20,000 references. It would occupy the staff of a large Library (did it possess the books) a long time to make a verified Index of this Work. I have done all that was possible to me.

It has not been feasible, in every instance, to discriminate between persons of identical Names, etc. The Reader must therefore be wary, and on his guard against the possibility of two or more identities lurking under the same personal Name, Pseudonym, or Initials.

Should that Name, etc., not be found on the page referred to, it must be reached through its anonymous Titles and the previous Title Index. Also, as the same Name, Topic, Building, etc., may occur more than once on that page; it should always be searched from the top to the bottom.

2. All Events, Organizations, Buildings, etc., in a place should be found under the name of that place.

3. In giving the fullest possible addresses of the Booksellers from any authentic source, the different addresses are distinguished by 1, 2, 3, etc.; and the varying descriptions of the same address, by (a) (b) (c), etc. For books recorded without Publishers' names, see Signs.

4. In addition to the names of Persons and Places, the following are the Subject Headings of the different classes of Books that are described in this Volume.

 Advantage has been taken of a change of Printers, very greatly to improve the last two Volumes of this Reprint; in fact, to do for them all that is possible, in the present day, for any Work without illustrations. The new Types are all of the same series; and are certainly among the most beautiful founts to be found anywhere in the world. The new Paper has been made under the advice, and subject to the constant tests, of most eminent London Paper Experts and Chemical Analysts; and will last till the Day of Doom. The new Ink will keep its intense blackness as long as the Paper will last.—E. A.

PREFACE.

DURING the period of this Second Volume, the History of Great Britain and Ireland is a record of very troublous times. It was the last great fight in this country between the Royal Prerogative and the Parliaments of the Three Kingdoms; between the supremacy of the King over the Law and the supremacy of the Law over the King.

In considering the fierce struggles and conflicts of that Age, we must ever remember that, in the nature of things, they were inevitable. The transition from Feudal ideas to those of a Constitutional Monarchy was too vast and too violent ever to be accomplished without great national convulsions. In this tremendous change among Christian nations, England lead the way; and accomplished in the Seventeenth Century what the other nations of Europe did not attempt until the Nineteenth Century. When to these merely political commotions are added the struggles of the various Christian Churches for supremacy, one cannot but feel a sense of pity for the men and women that lived in the vortex of those political and social changes; and of thankfulness to the ever blessed Trinity, that, in our time, all these fundamental principles of human society are now happily settled for us for ever.

2. These first two Volumes are the dry-as-dust record of the English Mind during the Restoration Age: vast, and so far as it goes exact and final. But those who desire to watch the life and movement, the light and shadow, the play of human emotions, of that Time, must turn to Dr. Osmund Airy's 'Charles II.'; and to the earlier Chapters of Lord Macaulay's 'History of England.'

Dr. Airy's brilliant and satisfactory Life was written to accompany the beautiful photogravures of Messrs. Goupil's glorious Folio of 'Charles II.', 1901; and was, last year, reissued in a separate and cheaper form.

With the purity and intelligence of an Archangel, this Biographer describes the brilliant, yet foul, Court of the Merry Monarch, the personal character and adventures of the King himself, and the various national Questions of that day. This charming monograph will always be read with pleasure by every student of English history.

3. As regards Lord Macaulay's History, we must not forget that the reigns of the later Stuarts only formed the introductory Chapters of that Story of the British Isles which he proposed to himself to write. Those reigns are indeed worthy of a much larger treatment than it ever entered into his plan to give to them.

Considering his many-sided public life, and his numerous avocations; it is perfectly marvellous that Lord Macaulay did so well at a time when English Bibliography was as yet in its infancy; when (as we can remember well) one had to search five Catalogues at the British Museum for any particular book, and then could not feel sure that the Library did not possess it; when no Calendars of the State Papers of the period existed; and when the Royal Historical Manuscripts Commission had not yet begun its work.

We recollect perfectly the sensation caused by the appearance of that History; what a new conception it gave to our national story; and how, by the might of this great magician, the Kings and the Statesmen, the Warriors and the Divines, of that far off Age were made to live again in the sight of Posterity.

Bibliographically speaking, that History is, as his Lordship tells us, based upon a close study of the Burney Collection of Newspapers in the British Museum: and no safer or better guide was possible to him at that time.

It is but another illustration of the vanity of all earthly things, that whereas that History was more especially written to glorify the noble Whig families that engineered the happy and glorious Revolution of 1688, and that mainly ruled England during the century that followed it: within the fifty years since that History appeared, the Whigs, as a political party, have ceased to exist in English society.

4. There is yet a third recent authority for the Restoration Age in the Memoirs of Thomas Bruce, Earl of Ailesbury and Elgin (b. 1656, s. 1685, d. 1741). These were published in two quarto volumes by the Roxburghe Club in 1890. This nobleman was in the royal household of Charles II. and James II.; and the record of his conversations with those Monarchs in these Memoirs places us for the moment in the centre of things. One can see in Lord Ailesbury his passionate loyalty for his Sovereign, with a general fair-mindedness from his aristocratic point of view. After the Revolution, he took the oaths: but being a Jacobite broke them; and was allowed to leave the country for Flanders, where he spent the latter part of his life.

5. The Restoration Age is then a Time of Genius and Might. No one can study this Reprint without feeling its power and energy. The loftiest questions of which the human mind is capable of considering were then discussed from various points of view. With all our advance in civilization, the Victorian Age has not endowed the human race with Writings equal to those of Milton and Newton, Dryden and Boyle, Baxter and Locke, Bunyan and Purcell, Rushworth and Pepys, Dugdale and Wood: which Writings 'the World will not willingly let die.'

II. The Further development of this Serial.

PASSING from these general considerations, we have first to carry on the Story of this Serial from I. viii.-xi. Once, and as yet only once, does the 'Collector of the Catalogue' obtrude his personality upon us, in the correction of a mistake at pp. 112, 132.

7. We still regard Robert Clavell as the controlling mind of this publication. If any one else were associated with him in the management of it, it was probably Benjamin Tooke, pp. 570, 580.

The general character of the Serial harmonizes well with the kind of books that Clavell himself published. All through that dangerous reign of James II., he steadily maintained its character as a True Blue Protestant Journal.

Like Dryden the Poet, and Haines the Actor; Henry Hills the Printer turned a Roman Catholic, and became 'Printer to the King's Court and Chappel.' He printed several Roman Catholic books in English, as did also the Oxford University Press: but these Works, like Dryden's political Poems, are only incidentally noticed herein, in connection with Replies to them.

A list of English Roman Catholic books printed in England in the reign of James II. has yet to be compiled.

8. John Dunton knew Clavell and Starkey well. Writing in 1704, he thus describes the former:

> Mr. Robert Clavell is a great dealer [man of busines]; and has deservedly gained to himself the reputation of a just man. Doctor [Thomas] Barlow, Bishop of Lincoln, used to call him 'the honest Bookseller.' He has been Master of the Company of Stationers: and perhaps the greatest unhappiness of his life was his being one of Alderman Cornish's Jury. Life and Errors. 283, Ed. 1705.

Alderman Henry Cornish was judicially murdered in October, 1685: see page 150.

About 1687, Dunton spent four months in Amsterdam, where he met John Starkey and Benjamin Alsop. Of Starkey, he writes:

> I formerly knew him in Fleet street; and we renewed our acquaintance in Amsterdam. He would talk very well on any subject; and had good nature in his very looks. He printed [i.e. published] a book relating to Government, that forced him to leave his country. He was a brave asserter of English Liberties to his last breath. Life and Errors. 289, Ed. 1705.

Starkey must have come back to England with the Expedition of William III.: soon after which he issued several publications; but he does not appear to have subsequently had a shop of his own, pp. 248, 255, 274.

9. It is one of the many services that Mr. Falconer Madan, M.A., Sub-Librarian of the Bodleian Library at Oxford, has rendered to English Literature, that, in November 1903, he identified, in the private possession of H. A. Pottinger, Esq., Librarian of Worcester College, Oxford, five more hitherto unknown Numbers of the Abridged Issue of the Fourth Series of this Periodical; to which reference has already been made at I. ix., viz.:

4 S.	No. 5	Michaelmas Term, 1681	2pp.; of which a page is reproduced at I. 456.
4 S.	No. 10	Hilary Term, 1683	2pp.
4 S.	No. 13	Michaelmas Term, 1683	2pp.; in very small print.
4 S.	No. 14	Hilary Term, 1684.	2pp.
4 S.	No.[15]	Easter Term, 1684	2pp. Does not correspond with the full Catalogue.
4 S.	No. 17	Michaelmas Term, 1684	4pp.

How much farther this Abridged Issue went is not yet known.

10. Hilary Term 1689 was not kept, on account of the Revolution; so the next Term Catalogue, for Easter 1689, is a very heavy one, as it includes the books issued in the first five months of that year.

It is also to be noted that some English books that were printed in the reign of James II., do not appear in this serial until after the Revolution.

11. A most strenuous search for the lost Number, 59 [58], of the Fourth Series, if it were ever issued, has failed as yet to recover it.

III. Notable Booksellers.

OF George Sawbridge, Dunton tells us,

> He was the greatest Bookseller that has been in England for many years, as may sufficiently appear by the estate he has left behind him: for (besides that he was chosen Sheriff of London, and paid his fine) he left behind him four daughters; who had each of them for their portions, Ten Thousand Pounds a piece. Life and Errors. 291, Ed. 1705.

But George Sawbridge, who was called an Esquire, was something more than a publishing Bookseller. He was concerned in printing Patents, see I. 321.

A number of Books in this Volume are recorded as being published by his widow, Hannah Sawbridge.

13. It was after his death, and more particularly after the Revolution of 1688, that Richard Chiswell rose to be the head of the London trade. Dunton's account of him is as follows:

> Mr. Richard Chiswell, who well deserves the title of metropolitan bookseller of England; if not of all the World. His name at the bottom of a Title Page does sufficiently recommend the book. He has not been known to print either a bad book; or on bad paper. He is admirably qualified for his business and knows how to value a copy according to its worth. Witness the purchase he made of Archbishop Tillotson's Octavo 'Sermons.' Life and Errors. 280, Ed. 1705.

We think that £2,000 was paid for these Sermons; but we cannot recover the authority for that belief.

14. Henry Herringham seems to have been the first London Wholesale Publisher, in the modern sense of those words. He turned over his retail business at the Blue Anchor in the New Exchange, Strand, to Francis Saunders and Joseph Knight; and devoted himself to the production of large English Works. Saunders remained at the Blue Anchor: but, when William Cademan, at the Pope's Head in the same building, died, Knight left Saunders, and succeeded to Cademan's business. It will be remembered that Dryden, at one time, lodged with Herringham.

15. Of the earlier career of Nathaniel Crouch, we have given some account at I. 543. Dunton says of him,

> I think I have given you the soul of his character when I have told you his talent lies at Collection. He has melted down the best of our English Histories into Twelve-penny books; which are filled with Wonders, Rarities, and Curiosities: for you must know that his Title Pages are a little swelling! Life and Errors. 282, Ed. 1705.

A reference to Crouch's Titles in this Volume fully bears out Dunton's description. This Compiler, however, did a good work; a work similar to that of Charles Knight with his 'Penny Magazine.' They each, in his generation, popularized knowledge; and spread the taste for reading.

16. Again, this Volume, at page 199, records that Michael Johnson of Lichfield, the father of Dr. Samuel Johnson, had, in 1687, when he was thirty-one years of age, shops in Uttoxeter and Ashby de la Zouch.

This leads us to that very interesting subject, the spread of Booksellers, those Apostles of Intelligence, over the country. Dunton, writing in 1704, speaks of 'Three Hundred Booksellers now trading in country towns.' Life and Errors. 319, 1705.

17. Lastly, Mr. W. C. Hazlitt, in his Bibl. Coll., 2 Series, p. 423, Ed. 1882, records two broadsides in 1684-85 as

'Printed for Absalom Chamberlain, and Sold by the Running Booksellers in every Street.'

We would like to know more about those Running Booksellers.

IV. Notable Books.

THE greatest gain to Literary History by the reprinting of this Volume is the manifestation of John Milton as a lexicographer. What has become of that 'large MS., in Three Volumes' of his, which was incorporated in the Cambridge Latin and English Dictionary of 1693, page 441. It is probably still somewhere at Cambridge; and a search should be made for it.

19. The greatest scientific book of that Age, Sir Isaac Newton's 'Philosophiæ Naturalis Principia Mathematica,' does not appear in this Serial. It was licensed by Samuel Pepys, as President of the Royal Society, on July 5, 1686; and appeared in 1687, as one of the publications of Samuel Smith.

20. Neither is there any trace in it of that lost first book of Daniel Defoe, for which we have hunted in vain for so many years. He gives us the following account of it.

> The first time I had the misfortune to differ with my friends was about the year 1683, when the Turks were besieging Vienna; and the Whigs in England, generally speaking, were for the Turks taking it; which I (having read the History of the cruelty and perfidious dealings of the Turks in their wars; and how they had rooted out the name of the Christian religion in above threescore and ten Kingdoms) could by no means agree with: and (though then but a young man, and a younger author) I opposed it, and wrote against it; which was taken very unkindly indeed. An Appeal. 51, Ed. 1716.

21. Attention may also be called to the Allegories of that Age; some of which were in competition with, or in continuation of, Bunyan's 'Pilgrim's Progress.'

22. Likewise the various Contemporary Bibliographies are very important: especially Baxter's own account of his Writings at page 342; which book we have not yet been able to meet with.

23. Yet again, the Reader must be warned that some of the accounts of the Political Trials of that Age are not accurate. They were censored on behalf of the Government; as was complained of at the time.

V. The Revolution Age.

THE Revolution of 1688 is the central fact of this Second Volume. What a happy and bloodless change it was, so far as England was concerned! Nobody, at the time, expected it to last. It was, however, finally established by the battles of the Boyne and of La Hogue, by the flight of James II. from Ireland, and by the war in Flanders. Those were indeed anxious times for the English people.

25. This period of our history is a very important one for Students of English Constitutional History. As soon as the Change was accomplished, the rightfulness and wrongfulness of it were discussed from every point of view: see 'State Tracts', and also Sir James Tyrrell's 'Bibliotheca Politica,' in this Volume.

26. One cannot but feel that, in the Restoration Age, the Clergy—Conformist as well as Nonconformist—were very much like the Prophets in the Kingdoms of Israel and Judah; and that they interposed in political matters as our present Clergy would never think of doing.

The Clergy of the English Church then consisted of two classes—the Hot Heads and the Moderate Men. The Hot Heads, represented by Thomas Long, would have stamped out Nonconformity by sheer physical force; while the Moderate Men, represented by Edward Pearse, most heartily pleaded for consideration for their Nonconformist brethren. When the Revolution came, the Hot Heads became Nonjurors; and so continued, until that party gradually died out in the next thirty years.

Also we must remember that, in the Restoration Age, Nonconformity was fighting for its very existence; which was finally secured by the Act of Toleration.

27. The ecclesiastical history of Scotland during that Time is also deeply interesting: how the Episcopal Church there oppressed the Presbyterians before, and how it had to endure the same 'rabbling' oppression after, the Revolution.

VI. Conclusion.

IN parting from this Volume one is very conscious of many shortcomings and failures; in spite of most devoted attempts. We are here dealing with English Literature as a whole, just as it came forth—a vast subject, containing many threads of controversy. For all errors and mistakes in this Reprint we once again humbly crave forgiveness. It has been a great undertaking for a single-handed Scholar to carry out unaided.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

AN Advertisement of a large Map of Canaan. This Map was first drawn by Mr. More, a learned Divine, Author of the Sacred Chronology that bears his Name, etc., first Fellow of Christ's Colledge, Cambridge; and afterwards Minister of St. Andrew's in Norwich: a Person so well acquainted with the Hebrew Text, that one calls him 'another Jerome'; and so exact in this Map, that he spent a great part of his Life in it. After his Death, which was 1592, it was Published by the industrious Mr. John Speed.

The Map contains fourteen large Sheets, besides six Sheets of Description: which makes the Map six Foot broad, and above seven Foot long. And hath these Advantages in it, 1. That it's a Description of the whole Land of Canaan; with all the Countries bordering upon it, as the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Amalekites, Ishmaelites, Egypt, and the Desarts of Arabia, etc; with the several Incampings of the Children of Israel in the Wilderness. 2. That Canaan is not only sufficiently distinguished from these Nations; and the general Partitions of it described by Chains, Links, and Pricks: but also the Divisions of the Tribes clearly laid out; and the chief Cities, as those of the Levites and [of] Refuge, distinguished by a particular Character. 3. That there is not the name of any City, Town, Country, Mountain, River, Lake, Wilderness, or Plain, etc., mentioned in the Scripture, within the Land of Canaan and the Countries abovesaid, but what is set down, with the place, or chief places, of Scripture; besides many References to Josephus, and other Authors. 4. The several names given, in different Ages, to one and the same Place, are also applied to it. 5. That there are fifty and more of the most famous Acts in Scripture represented in small Figures and Characters, according to their Scituation. 6. In this, there is also inserted a Map of Jerusalem, consisting of two large Sheets; with the Streets, Fortifications, Gates, and Markets, and other chief places referred to in Scripture and Josephus. 7. There is, at the foot of it, a particular Description of the Land of Canaan, the Kingdoms and Tribes; and also of Jerusalem: together with the Neighbouring Countries.

DIVINITY.

1. AN Illustration of those two abstruse Books in Holy Scripture, the Book of Daniel, and the Revelation of St. John, by continued, brief, but clear Notes, from Chapter to Chapter, and from Verse to Verse; with very useful and apposite Arguments prefix'd to each Chapter: framed out of the Expositions of Dr. Henry More. Quarto.

2. Paralipomena Prophetica; containing several Supplements and Defences of Dr. Henry More his Expositions of the Prophet Daniel and the Apocalypse, whereby the impregnable firmness and solidity of the said Expositions is further evidenced to the World. Whereunto is also added, (Philicrines) [Parrhesiastes] upon R[ichard] B[axter] his Notes on the Revelation of St. John. Quarto.

3. Boaz and Ruth. A Disquisition upon Deut. 25.5. concerning the Brother's propagating the Names and Memory of his elder Brother deceased: in which the Antiquity, Reason, and Circumstances, of the Law are explained; the Mistakes and Impositions of the Rabbins in this and other matters detected; and a way opened for a clearer understanding the dark Passages of the Law of Moses; together with a Discovery of several things, as well in the Eastern as Roman Antiquities. By John Turner, Hospitaller of St. Thomas, Southwark; and late Fellow of Christ's Coll. in Cambridge. Octavo.

4. A Sermon preached July 26.; being the day of Thanksgiving appointed for his Majesties Victory over the Rebels. By Tho. Wagstaffe, Chancellor of the Cathedral Church of Lichfield; and Rector of St. Margaret's, Pattons, and St. Gabriel, Fenchurch. Quarto.

7. Three Sermons preach'd at Salisbury. The First, A.D. 1680; and again before the Militia, at their going against the late Duke of Monmouth: in which the Doctrine of not resisting the Higher Powers on any Pretence whatsoever, taught by the Church of England, is established from Scripture, Reason, and Antiquity. The Second preach'd before the Right Reverend Father in God, Seth, Lord Bishop of Sarum, A.D. 1681; and published by his Command: in which the Formality and Hypocrisie of our Fanatical Pretenders to the Power of Godliness is discover'd. The Third preach'd A.D. 1683, at the Election of the Mayor; and published, with some Enlargement, upon occasion of a Discourse with Mr. Nelthorp in the Gaol of Sarum. In which the Doctrine of the Author of 'Julian the Apostate', viz. 'That where the true Religion is by Law established, Subjects are not obliged to suffer for it; but may, if persecuted for it, defend themselves against their lawful Sovereign,' is proved to be contrary to Scripture, Reason, and Antiquity: and pernicious to the Government. By Daniel Whitby, D.D., and Chantor of the Cathedral Church of Sarum. Quarto. Sold by Randal Taylor, near Stationers Hall.

8. A Sermon preached, before the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the City of London, at St. Mary le Bow, July, 26.: being the day of publick Thanksgiving for his Majesties late Victory over the Rebels. By John Scott, D.D. Rector of St. Peter's [le] Poor.

22. An Abridgment of the Prerogatives of St. Ann, Mother of the Mother of God; with the approbation of the Doctors of Paris; and thence done into English, to accompany the 'Contemplations on the Life and Glory of the Holy Mary'; and the defence of the same, with some pieces of a like Nature. To which a Preface is added, concerning the original of the story. Quarto.

23. An account of the Reasons which induced Charles II., King of England to declare War against the States General in 1672. And of the private League which he entred into with the French King to carry it on; and to establish Popery in England, Scotland, and Ireland. As they are set down in the 'History of the Dutch War' printed in French at Paris, with priviledge, in 1682; which Book was immediately suppressed at the instance of the English Ambassador. Folio.

24. A Vindication of the Proceedings of the Convention of Scotland; wherein the Lawfulness and power of that meeting is clear'd. The Original of Government, and the nature of our Monarchy, is enquired into. Our Laws concerning the King's absolute power, and the texts of Scripture for a Jure Divino Monarchy, are examined. Our Allegiance to King James is stated; and whatsoever can be urged against the present Settlement of the Crown resolved. The unreasonableness of our present Discontents; and a necessity of an intire adherence to their Majesties King William and Queen Mary, against a Popish, barbarous, and cruel, Army of Irish and French, is pathetically held and demonstrated. Folio.

25. An Account of the private League betwixt the late King James the Second and the French King: In a Letter from a Gentleman in the Country. Folio.

These eight printed for R. Chiswell at the Rose and Crown in St. Paul's Churchyard.
